

A classic “all-American” mixed breed – a little bit Spaniel, perhaps some Collie, who knows what else – four-year-old Lily is an adoptee from the Chautauqua County Humane Society. After a short time in the home of a CCHS foster volunteer, she found her forever home when she was adopted in March 2005. She joined two other family dogs, also adopted or rescued, and is the cuddly, loving, and calming member of her pack. She’s also the clown of the house, hence her full name – Lily Sillilibee. Lily is the perfect example of how much affection, fun, and devotion an adopted pet can bring to any home.
